HEIRLOOMS ON DISPLAY AT LOAN EXHIBIT

Wealth of Treasures to be Seen at Christ Church Parish Hall

EXCELLENT EXHIBIT

Program Continued Tonight—Exhibit Carefully Guarded by the Alexandria Light Infantry.

The first impression given by the Loan Exhibit in Christ Church Parish Hall is one of wonder that so many rare and beautiful treasures could be gathered under one roof. The Gazette's reporter had expected something unusually fine but he was not prepared for wealth of exquisite jewelry, ivory, silver, china, that crowds the central show cases and overflows on tables down the length of the Parish Hall. It seems that every treasure chest, every jewel casket, every storehouse of precious heirlooms in the city must have been opened for this exhibit.

The exhibit is arranged artistically and with rare feeling for the spirit of each group presented. The walls of the Parish Hall have been made a wonderful background for the smaller treasures of the exhibit by the use of shawls and quilts of exquisite hues and texture, rare old quilts in long forgotten patterns and hand woven bedspreads made from cotton and linen spun and woven long before the ancestors of these Alexandrians crossed to seas to Virginia. Grouped with these are shawls of lace as fine and firmly as a cobweb, white shawls once, but creamy now with age and almost ready to crumble at a touch. There are lace shawls whose original blackness is now a rusty brown where the years have touched them and one silk mantilla whose whiteness is now a brilliant orange. But the hand of Time has been gently laid on everything, the changes in color but intensify their beauty and add to them the charm of beautiful old age which is, after all, the one charm most to be desired.

At the left of the Parish Hall, on entering, is a group of costumes ranging from the Colonial to Civil War period and all historically correct. These have been arranged upon lay figures so that the details of material and style can easily be seen. There are silks of brilliant color, white satin, rare lace and one gentleman's suit of black satin.

Grouped along the walls and in the smaller rooms of the Parish Hall are rare pieces of furniture, old copper and brass, Sheffield, china, paintings and engravings that intrigue the imagination and send our fancies wandering down the vista of the years to the days when famous folk walked the streets of our town and talked familiarly together of common interests. All the exhibits are not of early American history. There is a painting of a duchess, a French woman of the ancient regime, ancestress of one of the patronnesses. Her lovely face looks down on the room from the wall, smiling inscrutably at the modern Americans who crowd around her. Near this is an engraving of Alexandria in its earliest days, when the Potomac river washed the foot of Lee Street, and Royal street marked the western boundary of the city. In the harbor lie sailing vessels from across the seas whose rich cargoes have been unloaded, linen and silver for the stately homes of Alexandria, books printed in Edinburg and in London and sent over to the scholarly gentlemen of the Old Dominion, patterns of silk and satin and the latest London styles for the leaders of fashion, perhaps some of these very treasures are gathered in Christ Church Parish Hall today. There is one linen napkin, part of a set of tablecloth and dozen napkins woven in Ireland in the late sixteen hundreds that was brought to Virginia on such a sailing vessel with the other family treasures of these pioneers. There is a mortar and pestle, made in Edinburg, Scotland, and brought to this country by a famous physician and used in his private hospital in Norfolk. Just to see it brings up visions of the old fashioned prescriptions compounded in that day and the kindly man who used his skill and wisdom for the good of his community. There are prescriptions of Dr. Dick's written in his own hand and some of his own books.

We like to think that after the crowd had gone, last night, and the soldiers of the Alexandria Light Infantry were on guard, that the treasures grouped in the hall talked with each other, softly, of course, so that the watching soldiers could not hear, in gentle voices and with courtly old time manner we think they must have Alexandria and of the great men and talked together of the old days of women whom they had knawn and to whom they have belonged. Surely the pen that belonged to Thomas Jefferson told of some of his brilliant sayings, and the miniature which always hung above his desk must have spoken of the changing expressions on his splendid face as he wrote. There must have been hundreds of such stor-

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

(From our Special Correspondent.)

Washington, Jan. 26.—Refusal of the people generally to heed the warnings of Prohibition Commissioner Haynes against the drinking of moonshine or other kinds of liquors since the supply of real liquor except for medicinal purposes has been cut off, has led to a great number of deaths in the past few weeks according to the warning given out today by Royal A. Haynes, U. S. Prohibition Commissioner.

Commissioner Haynes, in reporting statistics for the various states in which wood alcohol poisoning cases had taken place calls attention to the fact that sooner or later the people of the United States will come to regard the prohibition amendment to the Constitution of the United States as part and parcel of the law of the land and will cease violations of the act by performing and conforming to its provisions. Haynes is confident that within the next year or two the United States will be through with bootleggers, smugglers and other violators of the prohibition law. He is optimistic about the situation. There are others who take a contrary view of conditions, however.

Approximately $50,000,000 could be saved on the upkeep of the United States army each year if certain legislation advocated by the Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee were enacted by Congress

The Gazette corresnondent talked to Senator James A. Wadsworth of New York, Chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee today and he explained the situation.

"There are some fifteen reservations throughout the country," he said, "to which the government cannot claim a clear title, simply because small strips of land, not more than half an acre or an acre in extent are not the property of the United States. If these pieces of land were bought then the government could lease such reservations, abandon them altogether or dispose of them in any way it saw fit. A saving of at least $50 000.000 would be realized through such action and yet the Congress is not willing to provide the necessary legislation."

While he did not say so, it is known that Chairman Wadsworth entertains the view that Congress spends entirely too much time in talk and refuses to pass such measures which would mean an actual relief to the tax payers of the country and to a relief of the United States Treasury. There is another argument afforded the Democrats in this situation and it is predicted that

PLEDGE REPORT ON BONUS BILL VERY SOON

Fordney Says Measure Will Go To House In 2 or 3 Weeks

BRIEF HEARINGS

Manner of Providing Necessary Revenue Probably Will be Left to House Committee

Washington, Jan. 25.—Brief hearings will be held, probably next week, by the House Ways and Means Committee preliminary to drafting of a Soldier Bonus bill, Chairman Fordney announced last night. Opportunity will be afforded representatives of the Treasury and of veterans' organizations, such as the American Legion, to present their views, but it is not likely, he said, that any attempt will be made to obtain the opinions of others.

Mr. Fordney said a bill would be reported to the House within two or three weeks and would carry a provision for the raising of necessary revenue.

Anouncement of the committee's plans came after a conference yesterday between Republican leaders of the Senate and House, at which it was agreed a Bonus bill should be framed in the House with the determination of a way to provide revenue left entirely to the Ways and Means Committee.

At the same conference it was agreed the Permanent Tariff bill will be reported to the Senate early next month and passed before the close of present session.

Decision of the committee to take action also came on the eve of a caucus of House Republicans tonight at which members who were in the military service during the war are expected to demand prompt enactment of a Bonus bill.

Insistence of Secretary Mellon, expressed in a letter to Mr. Fordney, that the country's finances were so critical that a bonus was inadvisable, especially if linked up with the foreign debt, had a tendency today of increasing talk among House members in favor of some sort of a sales tax.

Chairman Fordney refused to comment on Mr. Mellon's letter, declaring he had not read it. He reiterated the belief, however, that some revenue for a bonus might be obtainable from the foreign debt repayment without disturbing the finances of the country.

Committee members, however, generally were agreed that a sales tax would have to furnish the bulk, if not all, of the revenue for a bonus.

Declaring that the committee had in no way agreed as to what kind of a tax should be levied, Mr. Fordney said he was emphatically opposed to a tax on gasoline. A bill proposing a producers' tax of 3 cents a gallon is pending before the committee. It would produce $900,000,000 annually, according to Mr. Fordney, who contended, however, that it would be a grave mistake to levy such a tax.

The committee chairman is said to have decided not to hold lengthy hearings on the bonus question because of the belief that the committee in preparing the new Internal Revenue bill heard sufficient testimony from various individuals as to the effect of different kinds of taxes.

FORTIFICATIONS ON PACIFIC IS LAST ISSUE

Awaiting Japan's Last Word In Settlement of Question

VISITS PRESIDENT

Chinese Minister In White House Conference on Far East Question—Surrounded by Secrecy.

The naval treaty and its collateral documents practically has been completed by the arms conference. Coincidentally the drafting committee of the nine powers shaped up a good part of the Chinese and Far Eastern agreement.

The naval treaty is ready for adoption with the exception of a single clause, that dealing with the fortification of the Pacific Islands. Japan retains the final word thereon. When Tokyo will speak is not known. Conference leaders hoped that it would be at once. But in any event the reply will not be delayed more than a day or two.

The single other great problem still outstanding is Shantung. An American spokesman declared last night that the difference between Japan and China on this subject is very slight, significant in the extreme; in connection, with this announcement, was the fact that Secretary Hughes yesterday afternoon accompanied the Chinese Minister, Mr. Sze, to the White House where they conferred with President Harding.

Great secrecy surrounded this conference. It was held in the White House proper instead of the executive offices in order that the newspaper correspondents could not "pry" into the matter when the visitors left. Later in the day neither Mr. Hughes nor the minister when seen would say anything for publication.

Chinese circles last night suggested that the outstanding feature of the White House exchange of views was President Harding's expression to the Chinese representative of the earnest desire of himself and his advisors to have Shantung settled, with honor to the Chinese, but in a spirit of mutual compromise that would leave both parties to the controversy satisfied. The President was understood to have made it plain that the American delegation has done everything possible to secure a settlement of all problems affecting China in a manner that will in every way safeguard that nation's sovereignty.

What effect this three-handed discussion will have cannot be told until after the direct Shantung negotiations are resumed between the Chinese and Japanese delegations today. Generally the hope was expressed that the intervention of the President would have a beneficial result.

Last night, however, it was said at Chinese headquarters that the position of the delegation is unchanged and that they will refuse to accept any settlement that does not unqualifiedly transfer the railway to China. Wellington Koo also declared that the delegation will not drop the twenty-one demands, but still will insist that the conference proper review them.

Horace Heflin Dies

The body of Horace Heflin, thirty-seven years old, who died at the Alexandria Hospital, Tuesday night, was shipped today to Fredericksburg, Va., for burial. The deceased had been ill a short time with pneumonia. Mr. Heflin resided at the Stuart Apartment on King street. He was employed as a brakeman at the Potomac yards and was a member of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

IN CONGRESS YESTERDAY

SENATE

The Foreign debt refunding bill occupied attention of the Senate most of the day. Senator Borah, among others opposing the administration program, declaring the United States should force payments in view of present conditions abroad. Senator Walsh, Montana, said the bill would transfer the treaty making powers of Congress from the President to the Secretary of Treasury. Senator McCumber expressed the belief that a final vote would be taken on the bill Thursday.

Senator Harris, Georgia, urged further restrictive immigration measures declaring American unemployment conditions were due to the influx of "pauper labor" from abroad.

A resolution calling upon the Attorney General for data on prosecutions under the espionage and conspiracy laws, was passed.

Hearings were begun on the movie picture industry, based upon charges that it has entered politics to the menace of national welfare. A subcommittee of the judiciary committee is conducting the inquiry, which will last for several weeks.

The tariff bill will be reported early next week and passed before the summer adjournment, Republican leaders assured House Republicans at a joint conference.

Immediately after disposal of the foreign debt refunding bill the Capper bill providing for a co-operative marketing commission, will be pressed, it was announced by members of the Agricultural block.

Denials that "agreements between the government and railroad employees during Federal control of the roads resulted in increased operating expense were made at the Interstate Commerce Committee hearings by labor.

Senator Sterling, South Dakota, introduced a bill to place under the civil service government employees engaged in prohibition enforcement. Further substatiation of the charges of Senator Watson, Georgia, that American soldiers were maltreated and shot without court-martial, was offered by sixteen additional witnesses before the committee of which Senator Brandegee is chairman.

HOUSE

Consideration of the Dyer anti-lynching bill under the five-minute rule, with the prospect of a final vote Thursday was begun upon completion of the debate which has lasted ten days.

Adjournment of Congress by June was tentatively agreed upon at a joint conference of Senate and House leaders of the majority.

The Fitzgerald bill establishing compulsory workmen's compensation laws in the District of Columbia was taken up by the District committee but action postponed until Saturday.

Illegal use of automobiles by District officials was denounced by Representative Johnson, Kentucky, in a statement before the District committee. The machines which are intended for official use have been privately used in a frightful disregard of honesty, it was said and an investigation was suggested.

Addresses Kiwanians

Irvin Diener Speaker at Weekly Luncheon of Club Today

Irvin Diener this afternoon delivered an interesting address before the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon of that club held in the Westminster Building. Some time ago it was decided to have each member of the club make an address on his line of business, and that is what Mr. Diener spoke on. The meeting was presided over by J. Randall Caton and the boost prizes were distributed by H. Noel Garner.

COMMITTEE FOR EACH SQUARE ON WHITE WAY

Seek to Get Merchants and Others to Pay Part of Expense

COST $2 FRONT FOOT

Total Cost is $12000—Lighting Co. Pays $7,200 and $4,800 to be Paid by Others

A largely attended meeting of the white way committee of the chamber of commerce was held last night in the rooms of that organization at which time addresses were made by W. A. Smoot and others on the project. Committees were named for each of the seven squares on King street between Fairfax and Patrick streets. These committees soon will canvass among the merchants and others on these squares and get their signatures to pay to their proportion of the cost incident to the improvement of that thoroughfare for the proposed white way.

The cost will be about $12,000 and sixty per cent or $7,200 will be paid by the Alexandria County Lighting Company leaving $4,800 to be paid by the merchants and others on these squares. The only cost to the city will be the lighting which it is stated will be in the neighborhood of $2,000 a year.

Capt. George H. Evans, business manager of the chamber of commerce, explained in detail the plans for the affair, he recently having completed a survey of the seven blocks. The merchants and others on the seven squares will pay approximately $2 per front foot. Practically all of those attending the meeting expressed themselves as heartily in favor of the proposition and there is every indication that the proposition will be adopted by city council the necessary ordinances being submitted to that body last Tuesday night and referred to committees.

Committees were named to canvass among the merchants and others on the seven foregoing blocks and the first named in each instance is the chairman or captain of that committee.

These committees follow: King between Fairfax and Royal—D. N. Hulfish, E. S. Leadbeater, Harry Cohen, Harry W. Wade, L. H. Dudley, Virgil Bayne.

AN APPRECIATION

The Globe of Bethlehem, Pa. has this to say of Mrs. Lawson who will sing in the Westminster Building, Friday evening, at 8 o'clock. Mrs. F. L. Lawson gave one of the most delightful musicales of the season at Bishopthorpe Manor last evening. The singer has an unusually beautiful voice, wide in range and sympathetic in quality. The program was from old English, classical airs to modern songs."

All Fraternal news must be in this office not later than 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in order to appear in the Fraternal column on Saturday. It is especially desired that all orders of the city be represented in this column.

AT RICHMOND LEGISLATION

House Proceedings

Speaker Brewer called the House to order at 12:02 o'clock, and prayer was offered by Rev. George E. Booker, pastor of the Monument Avenue M. E. Church, South. Delegate Boatwright moved suspension of the reading of the journal.

Delegate E. H. Gibson, of Culpeper, arose to personal privileges and said he had a statement from the State Accountant's Office showing that five members of the State Medical Examining Board at the last meeting held in Richmond had divided $1,440 between them. He denounced the system. Delegate J. Fulmer Bright, of Richmond, to clear up the situation said that while the money may have been divided at that time, it was a settlement for the year. He read a statement of receipts and disbursements of the board for the past three years, showing the average per member to be $140 per year, they attending two meetings each year, which averages three days each.

Senator Downing presented Senate joint resolution asking the Virginia members in Congress to vote against the Dyer anti-lynching bill, and the House concurred in the resolution.

House Bill No. 6, permitting the making of additional contracts, with the approval of the Governor, for the purpose of keeping prisoners employed, was read and passed to its engrossment and third reading.

House Bill No. 12, placing inns or lodging houses having five rooms or more under the hotel inspection laws of the State, was ordered to its engrossment and third reading.

On motion of Delegate Willis the House adjourned at 2:25 P. M., the hour being advanced on account of a speaker who will address the House at the conclusion of today's session.

Senate Proceedings

Rev. George W. McDaniel, D. D., pastor of First Baptist Church, again opened the Senate proceedings yesterday with prayer. Lieutenant Governor B. Frank Buchannan was in the chair.

The Downing resolution calling on the Virginia delegation to work and vote against the Dyer anti-lynching bill was adopted unanimously. It went to the House and within an hour announcement was made that it had been concurred in.

Senator Jeffreys offered a memorial asking the Interstate Commerce Commission to order a cut in freight rates and to favor legislation to enable carriers to reduce expenses so that employes will be justified in accepting lower compensation by reason of the lower cost of living.

WAR VETERANS PLAN BAZAAR WEEK OF FEB. 6

Under Auspices of Foreign War Veterans and American Legion

CONTESTS ON PROGRAM

Baby Show and Popularity Contest to be Features—Committee Headquarters at Chamber of Commerce

A monster bazaar and get-together celebration of the World's War Veterans' and American Legion of the city and county will be held at the Armory here during the week of February sixth.

Duly appointed committees of the Veterans of Foreign Wars headed by their tireless chairman and campaigner, Dr. Howard L. Arnold and an equally hard-working and pace-setting committee of the American Legion and their Ladies Auxiliary, consisting of J. Randall Caton, the newly elected post commander, John T. Worthington, C. M. Shepperson, Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, Mrs. C. M. Shepperson, and Miss Ether Green have been in consultation for several days past, making the preliminary arrangements for the big affair.

A campaign will be carried on among the merchants to aid the war-chests of the two veterans organizations, the proposal being to give them in return an advertising banner on the side wall of the Armory.

There will also be a Baby Show, with prizes for the successful babies who enter. The ratings will be fifty per cent according to health, beauty and physique and fifty per cent for popularity or aid given the organizations to help make their "Put and Take" Bazaar, as it has been modernly styled.

Who will be "Miss Alexandria?" In other words who is the most popular girl in our fair city will be another much mooted question settled on the last night of the affair for the boys are planning a real live "Popularity Contest" among the fair sex, and already there is much talk and speculation as to the outcome. Both the Miss Alexandria and the Baby Contests will be officially opened on Saturday, and any baby up to the age of five years can be entered to compete for the pretty prizes which will be on display in the windows of a local jeweler. "Miss Alexandria" will receive a handsome diamond ring from both organizations as a memento, and all ladies finishing well up in the race will also receive jeweled souvenirs of the affair. There is no age limit in the "Miss Alexandria" contest and any young lady, married or single, can enter and help to make the affair a real success. Headquarters will be in the club room of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be open day and night from now on.

There will be dancing every night to the strains of a good orchestra, several vaudeville acts and novelty booths. It is planned to have every thing nominally priced including the admisson price to meet the times, although the boys are anxious to realize money to add to their relief fund. Delegations from the ex-service men's post are expected from Washington and vicinity, and all the local lodges, churches, clubs and organizations will all be extended invitations to attend on the various nights set aside for their entertainment.

LYNCHING BILL CAUSES UPROAR IN THE HOUSE

Heated Exchanges Between Members—Cheering Negroes Are Rebuked

MACE NECESSARY

Drastic Measures to Restore Order—Invasion of States' Police Powers Claimed

Washington, Jan. 26.—The House of Representatives, oftimes turbulent and occasionally rioutous, was a scene of pandemonium late yesterday during the stress of debate over the Anti-Lynching bill.

Negroes packed the galleries while members had heated interchanges on the floor. Prominnent members of both sides participated in the acrimonious debate. Amid the confusion, the Speaker's gavel resounded with vigorous whacks and the time-honored symbol of authority, the mace of the sergeant-at-arms, had to be brought into play to quell the temper of the members. It was one of the liveliest sessions in Congress in many a day.

General debate on the bil was on and Representative Philip P. Campbell, of Kansas, who looks like the peace-loving Scotch bard, Bobby Burns was in the chair presiding over the House. The excitement broke suddenly.

Representative Sisson ,of Mississippi, the tall sycamore of the gulf, who has been in Congress for many years, a cotton planter by vocation, was explaining the race conditions in his part of the South. He deplored lynching, he said, but as long "as black fiends put their hands on white women they are going to be treated that way."

d c ?- dofw mod omdd mod omodm

Representative Cooper, of Wisconsin, charged Mr. Sisson with openly adovcating mob law. Mr. Cooper said it was the first time he had overheard such a thing in the House.

At this the negroes in the galleries forgot the rules which forbid applause and cheered heartily and long, while several members on the Democratic side jumped to their feet.

There were shouts from the floor by members of "shut up" and "niggers in the galleries" and similar comments. Chairman Campbell rapped hard for order. Several members shouted for recognition. The chairman called to the sergeant-at-arms to restore quiet. At the same time he admonished the galleries that they were violating the rules of the House when they applauded.

Representative Sisson finally was ordered to his seat, with other members.

"Get that crowd to be in order and I will be in order" Mr. Sisson said, as he walked up the aisle to his seat.

He told Mr. Cooner that he "was not advocating mob law."

General debate was concluded by Representative Volstead, chairman of the Judiciary Committee. He defended the measure, which Democrats and Republicans have attacked as unconstitutional. "When there is a wrong," he said, "it is the function of Congress to pass a law to correct it."

Representative Summers, Democrat Texas, told the Republicans that the Democrats "believe you are fixing to turn loose race passion and dye the country red with blood." He condemned lynching and said the South is trying to wipe it out; that the States in which it occurs are trying to educate their communities against it. "We don't want our white men or black men lynched" he said. "You have got no right to get your votes at the price of the safety of millions of black people in the South. I believe you are buying black votes with the safety of the white women of the South."

U. S. BUREAU OF EDUCATION

We are just in receipt of the Report of the U. S. Commissioner of Education for last year, and find many items of general interest in its pages. This Bureau, in existence since 1867, is charged with certain administrative functions, but its main activities are those of research and the dissemination of knowledge thus obtained among the forty-eight States. The Bureau has a staff of some eighty-seven employes in its offices at Washington. More than twenty of these are specialists engaged in the various lines of research work, and the remainder are statisticians, librarians and clerks.

The Statistical Division issues from time to time, bulletins as to the general survey of education in the United States; as to the statistics of city school systems; and statistics as to universities, colleges, and professional schools. These bulletins are sent to public and private high schools, commercial schools, city schools, normal schools, nurse-training schools, colleges and universities, and kindergartens. During the year ending June 30, 1921, the Bureau sent out 422,022 bulletins, 14,324 annual reports, and 368,952 miscellaneous circulars. In addition, an aggregate of 1,232,373 sheets of mimeograph work of various kinds, including questionnaires, bibliographies, and articles on educational topics, were distributed by the Bureau. Forty thousand personal letters were also sent out.

The work being done in Alaska is especially interesting to the general reader. It would seem, after a perusal of the Bureau's activities in that vast territory, that a permanent foundation for future civilization was being laid, and that no other virgin territory in the world ever made a start under such intelligent and favorable auspices. We well remember, some twenty years ago or more when the then Commissioner had as one of his tasks, the introduction of reindeer from Siberia. The establishment and maintenance of vast herds of this most useful animal is the result, the importance of which can hardly be overestimated.

Commissioner Tigert is a most worthy successor to the long line of distinguished scholars who have adorned this Bureau, and we are glad to commend him and his competent and well-equipped staff. A Tennessean by birth, with a career marked with distinction at every step, Mr. Tigert does credit to his native state as well as to the entire South.

NORFOLK CALLS FOR FUNDS

RELIEF FUND FOR JEWISH WAR SUFFERERS

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 26.—Norfolk's appeal for the $35,000 quota to be raised in this city for the relief of Jewish war sufferers in Middle and Eastern Europe was launched last night at a meeting at which Mrs. Alexander Kohut, who has just returned from the stricken zone, was the principal speaker. She was introduced by Rev. Dr. Louis D. Mendoza who told eloquently of the work done by the American field forces.

Mrs. Kohut, the wife of a Rabbi and the daughter of a rabbi, was the representative of the Council of Jewish women in the stricken area. She told of the homes destroyed, young girls viloated, mothers wandering over districts, half demented, peering into faces for a sight of their children from whom they had become separated; of fugitives fleeing from one country to another only to be turned back at each border to fall victims of famine, or disease, or violent death; of famine stricken little ones, old and gaunt and undersized, looking like old men before their time, and men old in years but only of boyish statue because they had been underfed. She told of the wandering across Europe from the Roumanian border to a French seaport of two brothers and a sister, who finally escaped to America and of a demented disease stricken woman who even now waits with her babe in Rotterdam, hoping against hope that she may escape to this country.

The speaker broke down and more than one among her hearers did the same. J. D. Hofheimer was named chairman of the Committee with Herbert J. Gerst, Treasurer and Philip May, Secretary. David B. Goodman was named chairman of the special executive committee which is to raise $35,000 quota, which was pledged with intense earnestness and enthusiasm for the work to be under taken.

Richard the Lion-Hearted of England and Philip Augustus of France led the Third Crusade against Saladin, sultan of Syria and Egypt.

BIG GAME

A. H. S. Will Lock Horns With Bliss Tomorrow Night at Armory

Alexandria High School's almost 'invincible five' will meet the strong team of Bliss Electrical School on the Armory Hall floor tomorrow night. Bliss has played in Alexandria once before this season and was defeated by the strong A. L. I. team by only five points. All indications point to a heated battle and the fans of the city will do well to see this game.

AT RICHMOND

A resolution by Senator Gunn asking for a statement of what departments of the State government are housed in private property and the rental paid, was adopted.

Two bills were passed. One increases the salary of State Insurance Commissioner Joseph Button from $3,500 to $5,000, all of which would come out of the fees paid by the insurance companies and would not be an added burden to the State Treasury. The bill passed, 32 to 0. Senate Joint Resolution, No. 4, changing the State Constitution to make the fiscal year and appropriation year coincide, was adopted, 30 to 0.

Senate bills, Nos. 66, 78, 8, 23, 25, 35, 56, 58, 59, 63, 97, were advanced to engrossment and third reading. Senate bill, No. 62, on its second reading, was referred back to committee to enable seedmen to appear.

The Eskimos are said to be the healthiest people in the world when not contaminated by white people.

Far in the depths of Algeria, deep in the heart of the mountains in Northern Africa, there is to be found a strange race of people called "White Arabs." Among neighboring tribes they go by the name of "Shawia Berbers."

The natives of Samoa are provided with their principal food by the cocoanut palm and the breadfruit tree. Copra, the dried meat of the cocoanut, forms an export. There are no animals except a native rat, four species of snakes and a few birds.

POE MEMORIAL ENTERTAINS

The Edgar Allan Poe Shrine, the Poe Memorial association of Richmond, Va., is observing the one hundred and thirteenth anniversary of the birth of America's great literary genius by a special meeting and by sending out the first invitation to the general public to participate in the work the Shrine is doing.

The Old Stone House, an excellent example of the earliest architecture, probably built by the city's founder, has become the home of the organization. This, the oldest house in Richmond, is still in its original condition. Wherever repairs were necessary instead of new lumber or hard ware, material closely associated with Poe has been used. The house has been furnished with original colonial furniture, and great pains have been taken to have the whole a harmonious unit.

The founders of the Shrine hunted tirelessly for just the right materials for the house. Not only have they succeeded in getting hinges, locks and fittings in keeping with its age, but all of these are closely connected with the boyhood and manhood of the poet. Some of the locks on the doors are the oldest type, set in a solid block of wood. Others came from the home of Elmira Royster, Poe's first and last sweetheart. Not only are some of the old time paneled shutters interesting because of their age and their early hand-forged hinges and fastenings; but these, with a pair of hinges, came from the house in which Poe's mother died, located a few squares from the site of the Shrine.

At the Old Stone House—the Poe Shrine—will also be found a chair once used by Poe, a table built by the Allan carpenters out of walnut wood from the Allan homestead, a fully authenticated lock of hair clipped from the brow of the poet at his death by J. E. Snodgrass, a portrait by Mrs. Norman Burwell painted from a miniature once owned by Poe's mother-in-law, Mrs. Clemm. Many other relics make one feel that Poe himself is present, perhaps brooding a bit over a world that has so many honors for him long after his death.

The desk used by Poe at the Southern Literary Messenger office is perhaps the most interesting article to be seen at the Shrine. On a unique pigeon hole of the desk where Poe kept his private papers is written in his own well known autograph, "E. A. Poe Personal Papers." And from a secret compartment in the top came numerous unpublished manuscripts and letters which will be seen by visitors to the Shrine.

Stepping from the house one enters Poe's "Enchanted Garden;" the walls, the walks, the seats, the pergola to be found in this garden are all made from material from The Literary Messenger Building or from other buildings where Poe either worked or lived. This material has been preserved in a beautiful way for future generations to see and enjoy.

A formal public opening is planned for the early spring when the garden will be in its vernal glory. Not only is the Shrine a worthy object of interest to tourists, but promises to become the center of interest for Poe lovers. Already the Memorial has started in a comprehensive way to compile every sort of material relating to Poe and to gather and preserve for all time, for the use of Poe students and admirers, copies of all obtainable Poe editions, manuscripts and letters.

As this is being written, Francis W. Hirst editor of the London Economist, who recently visited the Shrine, has located and is presenting to the library there a very rare copy of one of the first English editions of Poe's works. Decendants of Poe have donated many things of interest. One of the largest collectors of America has become so interested that he stated that all arrangements have been made to have his Poeana sent to the Shrine.

Crusades, from the Latin crux, a cross, was the name given the religious wars in the middle ages between the Christian nations of western Europe and the Mohammedans of eastern Europe and western Asia.

Norfolk—Records of the United States Geological Survey show that Hampton Roads maintained its supremacy as a coal port by a big margin during the year 1921. A total of 17,242,000 net tons of coal were dumped at Hampton Roads piers during the 12 months, while New York, the nearest competitor, so far as total tonnage is concerned handled only 11,912,000 net tons, or more than 5,000,000 tons less than this port.

FOR GREATER ALEXANDRIA

Stopping at the Hotel Rammel, R. J. Dunn, salesman for Liggett and Myers, in a talk with the Gazette's reporter, expressed himself on the importance of free thought and giving to that same though ample publicity. He also says that he thinks what is important in the realization of a Greater Alexandria is fearless and prompt action. In detail he says:

"I have been a frequent visitor in your city for the past few years and will tell you that I think you have a wonderful city, that is a city with wonderful possibilities, but your experience this morning brings out one of the reasons for the non-realization of your possibilities.

"Some of your people are not afraid to express their thoughts publicly when they think them. These are the ones who will go in heart, soul and body for the advancement of the city and these are the ones whose work will bring about a better city.

"Some others there are, I think, who stick to that old slogan 'Never do today what can be put off until tomorrow.' Now these fellows are the ones who need to have installed into them a new spirit—a spirit of action and prompt action—before they will be very influential in bringing about what is acknowledged to be best for the city.

"I am indeed glad to find that one of your citizens is already advocating careful selection of your new city councilmen. This, in my opinion, is the thing that every loyal citizen should be interested in just at the present time and on which he should not be afraid to express his views publicly. If a man will not express his views before the whole community he may be put down as a mental coward, and that is not the man that will help very much.

"You have now heard what I have to say and can just sum it up as follows: Every man that is at all interested in a bigger and better city should say so publicly, because what is the use of favoring anything and keeping it under your hat. And if he does not favor what is being advocated, why does he not come out and say that publicly, because a bad proposition will never be righted if someone does not tell that it is wrong.

"Let everyone try to be a leader—if he has a thought or suggestion, let him give it voice—do not be a follower and wait for someone to express his thought before he will say anything about it. When all your men are like this—willing and anxious to talk and work, then your Greater Alexandria will come, and come in a hurry."

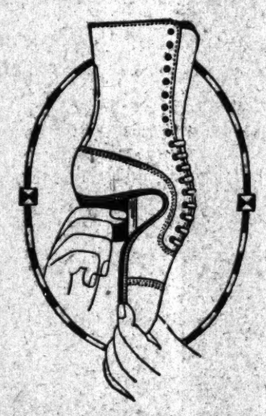
Smiling freshness, untiring strength, buoyancy! These joys come as the result of wearing correct footwear. Shoes that encourage good posture, that support the instep without binding the muscles, such shoes will keep you at your best and brightest no matter how many hours you are on your feet.

The Cantilever Shoe will not only bring you foot comfort; it will increase your health and add to your capacity for enjoyment.

It is a well-made shoe, distinguished by good taste in every detail of its appearance. The last is graceful, becoming, and yet there is ample toe room. The heel, smartly low and broad, is set to encourage correct posture. Because the sole has a natural outline, the foot lies in its proper position, with the toes pointing ahead as they should for health and comfort The under-arch sole provides restful support for the instep.



And the shank is as flexible as the arch of the foot itself! No steel "shank piece"— such as is concealed in the sole of an ordinary shoe—restrains the freedom of the muscles. Instead, in Cantilevers the foot is encouraged to exercise; the muscles have free play; the blood circulates and sends a healthy color to the cheeks. POOR VISION A MENACE IN OUR SCHOOLS

MENACE OF DEFECTIVE VISION IN PUBLIC SCHOLS OF UNITED STATES

1. An average of 25 per cent of the school children of the United States have defective vision in need of correction. This is established by means of a questionnaire covering fifty cities and reports from a number of rural districts.

2. The principal eye defects disclosed by investigation are:

a. Hypermetropia—far sightedness
b. Myopia—near sightedness.
c. Astimatism.

3. Defective vision, chiefly myopic, is progressive and is therefore found to a large extent among the older children in the schools.

4. Investigations show that defective vision cannot be considered a cause of retardation in school, but is chiefly a penalty paid by the more studious thus imperiling the future of the brightest scholars.

1. Near-sightedness, the most prevalent eye affliction, has symptoms that come in logical sequence.

2. Its beginnings, primarily, are due to congenital astigatism and the subsequent strain upon the accommodation of the eye in the effort to see.

3. It usually manifests itself seriously during school life.

4. Its development is still further encouraged by the hours of constant daily application in reading and writing at that period in life when the tissues are plastic and easily moulded.

5. It is not, however, always associated with over use of the eyes for it arises after illness, is present in illiterates and its predisposition is known to be strongly hereditary.

1. Of 175,153 children examined in New York public schools, 17,888, or about nine per cent, suffered from defective vision.

2. Examination of 92,552 school children in Boston public schools showed 11,899, or nearly thirteen per cent, having poor eye sight.

3. In Pennsylvania, 17.9 per cent defective vision was found among 469,128 rural school children examined.

4. Just 26.6 per cent of 1,625 pupils examined in Orange County, Va. weer found with defective vision and 5.1 per cent were very serious.

5. Of 742 children in the rural schools of Bannock County, Idaho, 29.9 per cent had defective vision.

6. Grand Forks County, North Dak., found 25 per cent with defective vision among 824 pupils examined.

1. Nineteen states have enacted laws requiring the testing of school children's eye sight. Their requirements vary both in the frequency of tests and rules governing them. These states, in the order of the enactment of such laws are: Connecticut, Massachusetts, Colorado, Maine, Indiana, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Utah Vermont New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, Wyoming, Nevada.

Sixty-four conservation of vision classes have been established in 37 cities. Eighteen classes are located in Massachusetts, 27 in New York. 21 in Ohio. eight in Michigan, 6 in Wisconsin, four each in Minnesota and Pennsylvania. 2 in Louisiana, and one apiece in Connecticut, Illinois and Washington.

3. But five cities in the United States have eye clinics in the public school system. These are New York, Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Rochester. The New York clinic corrected eye defects of 8,789 children in one year by refraction and glasses.

In a number of states it is possible to proceed against parents or guardians who fail to comply with orders regarding children with defective vision. Only three states—Colorado, New Jersey, and New York—have specific provisions however, compelling parents or guardians to have examinations and treatment made.

5. The remedial steps most generally approved and adopted in all cities which have specific rules regarding defective vision, are as follows:

a. Instructions from Board of Public Health given to normal school students and teachers.

b. Preliminary examinations by teachers of all pupils in room.

c. Accurate examination by qualified eye expert.

d. Notice to parents that child has defective vision.

e. Follow up by nurses to see that notice is complied with.

f. Continuous eye tests and complete record maintained for each pupil tests to be made semi-yearly if possible.

g. General supervision of all known cases by medical examiners.

h. Financial aid through specific funds or local charities for parents or guardians too poor to have child's eyes given proper attention.

From the above, it is apparent that much remains to be accomplished if the menace of defective vision is to be combatted successfuly in the United States. The logical procedure to be advocated would be:

1. Adoption of satisfactry systems in school districts to comply with existing laws governing defective vision.

2. Enactment of laws compelling parents or guardians to comply with notices to provide refractory aid for children with poor eye sight.

3. Extension of eye clinics and conservation of vision classes to all cities and into the rural schools.

4. Codification and unification of all state laws regarding defective vision.

5. Enactment of sane measures, compelling eye tests in public schools in the remaining 20 states.

For the past decade we have devoted more attention to the improvement of the standards of American STOCK TWO education than ever before in our history. The records of our state legislatures and assemblies disclose a multitude of acts relative to the public schools of the nation, each beneficial to some phrase of our extensive educational system. Yet, with all our advancement, we have proven lax in a more or less large degree by not attacking, with any pronounced or concentrated vigor, a fundamental factor shown by investigation to be a district menace against the health and proper development of our school children. This is the prevalence of poor eye sight among the pupils of the public schools.

The existence of defective vision in the child in our grade or high schools is a challenge to our presumed interest in the welfare of the country. When the percentage of these eye defects is shown to approximate one fourth of our total school population the challenge becomes an indictment. Where is our vaunted civilization if we permit this appalling condition to continue unchecked? How can be boast of an educational system which will permit a quarter of its scholars to blunder half blind through the grades, handicapped at the very beginning of life by an inability to see clearly.

It is a condition which should arouse the gravest concern. Not more than a month or two ago we learned from the Hoover Committee on Elimination of Waste in Industry that more than fifty per cent of our industrial workers are suffering from poor eye sight. Now we discover that the same ailment affects 25 per cent of our school children. The inference is plain. Aside from our moral responsibility in the welfare of American childhood, we should awaken to the real origin of the economic menace of defective vision in our industrial occupations.

How little we have realized our national duty. Only 19 states have laws requiring eye tests in the public schools. But three states have legislation compelling the parent to attend to the defects in the child's eyes. Five cities in the entire country have eye clinics connected with the public school system. Our conservation of vision classes number but 62 in the whole nation. We should be ashamed at thought of the relatively slight accomplishments. What we have done has been a mere beginning. Before us the solution lies evident—extension of our compulsory eye test legislation and of our eye clinics and conservation of vision classes, and broad development of our system of poor eyesight detection. It must be universal, and it must be pressed until defective vision no longer can rear its menacing form against our national progress.

Danville—Danville suffered another serious fire loss early today, the second within two weeks when the Miller building, a three story Main street brick structure, was swept by the restructive element with a loss of money which will range between $80,000 and $100,000. Two mercantile stores, both victims in the more serious conflagration of January 1920 were wiped out, a cafe owned by Harris Menos, the same man whose other cafe was destroyed by fire two weeks ago, was ruined; the Young Women's Christian Association so damaged by fire, water and smoke as to be an almost total loss while eleven offices and their contents were wiped out.

Spotsylvania—A complete distilling outfit was captured on Saturday by Sheriff C. A. Carner just in rear of the road convict force at work on the the roa dconvict force at work on the Richmond and Washington Highway. between Partlow and Spotsylvania. A lot of mash and meal were also found but no whisky, but all the bfuckets had the "scent of the roses" lingering in them. No clue has been found as to who ran the still.

The Seventh and Eighth Crusades, 1248-1254 and 1268-1270, were promoted to satisfy the religious scruples of Louis IX of France.

Originally the object of the Crusaders was to gain free access for pilgrims to the holy sepulchre, but developed into a contest for the possession of Jerusalem itself.

they will embrace the opportunity in the forthcoming campaign.

Bold reiteration of his stand against the soldier bonus bill by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon gave adherents of the bonus plan food for serious thought today and unquestionably had a far reaching effect on members of the House and Senate who have been doubtful as to their stand on the bonus.

While it could not in truth be said that Mr. Mellon's statement had even temporarily stopped the progress of the bill, there is no doubt but that the eyes of the bonus proponents were opened to the dangers of their scheme. Statement of the Secretary of the Treasury that approximately $800,000,000 would be needed to pay the first two years installments of the bonns bill, together with his statement showing the folly of various tax plans that have been proposed, at once put the bonus boosters on the defensive and has forced them to find a way of raising money to meet the bonus that is feasible and which can be passed through congress.

Secretary Mellon estimates the cost of the proposal at from $1,560,000,000 to $5,250,000,000. He showed that the financial condition of the government at this time will not permit of the payment of any such sum to the soldiers at this time and that there is a distinct opposition to the use of the foreign debt payments for this particular purpose.

Despite the fact that the President has clearly indicated the soldiers' bonus bill will be enacted by this congress, there are those that feel that in view of the statement of Secretary of the Treasury Mellon he may be forced to back down from his original statement. Politicians in Washington cannot figure out how he could well afford to ignore the financial situation presented by the Secretary of the Treasury and agree to a bill which would provide for the payment of untold millions to the veterans of the world war without affording relief financially from other sources. There have been rumors that Secretary Mellon is about to resign from the cabinet. If he should be thrown down by the President in his declared intentions against a soldiers' bonus bill at this time there is little doubt that the Pittsburgh member of the present official family would severe his connections with the Harding administration.

Marriage of Heiress Again Postponed

The marriage of Mary Landon Baker, of a prominent Chicago family to Allister McCormick, also socially prominent in the Middle West metropolis, has been postponed for the second time. The first postponement was made at the last moment, when the church was thronged with the social elect of Chicago. Miss Baker's father says the delay is caused by her illness. No definite date has yet been decided upon. Miss Baker is here shown with her fiance.

Twins Expect to Live to be 100.

Mrs. Mae Peake and Mrs. Bell Billings, reputed to be the oldest living twins in the country. They are eighty-three years old and expect to live to be 100. Their husbands fought on opposite sides during the Civil War; both died about eighteen years ago, and the twin widows are now living on a fruit farm near El Paso, Texas. Give them away—throw them away—sell them to old shoe dealers? Not a bit of it, dear lady. Bring them here and watch us transform those old, dilapidated, shapeless, apparently useless shoes into the finest looking footwear you ever saw. Don't believe we can do it? It will cost you nothing if we don't prove it to you.

ies whispered last night, things which poor humans will never hear.

The city owes a debt of gratitude to the soldiers who guard these treasures. Some of them have been on duty for forty-eight hours, with perhaps one hour's sleep apiece, yet this morning they were as erect and smartly military as on parade. It is a credit to any city to have a military organization with so much civic pride, for the Light Infantry is giving its services to the Loan Exhibit through interest in the Historical Pageant and desire to be of real service.

This is not an Exhibit of a church or of a few societies. It is Alexandria's own exhibit, and held for the purpose of honoring our city in the spring when all the other cities of the State will be represented in iRchmond. The Historical Pageant to be held there will be heard of all over the country and it is the wish of the patriotic women of this town that their home town should not be last upon the list of illustrious names. For this purpose they are raising the funds, for this they have gathered this collection of rare and beautiful antiques, and Alexandrians not only owe themselves a duty to see these exhibits but owe their city a duty which they can discharge by adding their fee to the hundreds of others crowding the Parish Hall. Never again will such a collection be gathered together, never again can Alexandrians view these many treasures. The Exhibit closes tonight at ten o'clock.

The programe of last night and this afternoon will be continued tonight. It is hoped that every Alexandrian will avail himself of this opportunity to help his home city and at the same time catch a glimpse of the marvelous past, upon whose foundations the new Alexandria rises and to whose influences the newer Alexander turns for inspiration.

Petersburg—Rev. Edwin R. Carter rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, at Hampton, has accepted the call to Grace Church, this city, and will shortly take up his duties here, although the exact date of his coming is not known.

AILING WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Mrs. Linton Tells How Helpful Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is at This Period

Denver Colorado.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for seven years and I cannot tell you the good it has done me. It is good for young and old and I always keep a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for Lydia E. Pinkham's help. My husband saw your ad. in the papers and said 'You have taken everything you can think of, now I want you to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound!' So I let him get it, and I soon felt better and he told me 'I want you to take about six bottles.' So I did and I keep house and do all my own work and work out by the day and feel fine now. I tell every one about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well."—Mrs. R. J. LINTON, 1850 West 33d Avenue, Denver, Colorado.

After reading letters like the above, and we are constantly publishing them, why should any woman hesitate to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound if she is in need of help? It brings relief where other medicines fail.
